Emma and the Dingo

There once was a joey named Emma. Emma and her mum lived in the Queensland outback with her family, a huge mob of kangaroos.

Emma loved to explore. She hopped through the thick bush, she waded through watering holes and she ate as much grass as she could find.

One day, Emma was playing in the grasslands. A rabbit pricked its ears up above the green blades and Emma took off. She hopped as fast as she could, chasing the rabbit for what seemed like an eternity. As the rabbit disappeared over the auburn horizon, Emma realized she was lost.

Frightened and alone, Emma found a place to sleep for the night. As she closed her eyes, Emma heard a rustling in the bushes. A deep growl followed and even though it was dark, Emma knew it was a Dingo.

The Dingo leapt out of the bush. He was huge. He was bigger than Emma, he was faster than Emma and he was mean.

As the Dingo positioned to pounce, Emma heard a flurry of movement from behind her. It was her family. The kangaroo mob quickly encircled her in a ring of protection. Even though the Dingo was bigger than Emma, he was now outnumbered. The Dingo fled knowing he had been beaten.

Emma thanked her family and they hopped back home.

That day Emma learned an important lesson. When the mob sticks together, they can overcome even the fiercest predators.

Colouring In - You can do it!

Below is the poster of Rosie the Riveter who is a cultural icon. Originally created to represent the women who worked in factories and shipyards during World War II, replacing the male workers who were in the military. Rosie has become a symbol of equality for all women, especially those working in male dominated workplaces.

The AMWU, our union, has members in many different workplaces!
